

Wattles Stewardship Center

1024 Anderson Road, Port Murray, NJ 07865
Phone: 908.837.9571 / Fax: 908.837.9569
www.nj Audubon.org/conservation

HOURS: No public facilities. Trails and parking area are open from sunrise to sunset.

Conservation and Research Department Staff:
Don Donnelley, Stewardship Project Director, Forester
Gylla MacGregor, Project Director – GIS
Kristin Mylecraine Munafo, Senior Research Scientist
John Parke, Stewardship Project Director, North Region

Spring 2012 Programs

March through May

HALF-DAY FIELD TRIP FOR FARMLAND AND RIDGELINE WILDLIFE

Saturday, May 19

8:00 A.M. to noon

At DanaRay Farm, Frankford, Sussex County, led by John Parke.

Bring your camera! DanaRay Farm offers an opportunity to experience New Jersey's rural natural heritage with great chances to see native wildlife in a farm setting. Located at the base of the Kittatinny Ridge in scenic Sussex County, the bio-dynamic DanaRay Farm will be our meeting point for a leisurely half-mile hike. We will walk along a relatively flat ridgeline on the world-famous Appalachian Trail to the Sunrise Mountain overlook. No strollers, please. The area offers excellent woodland bird habitat and opportunities to view resident Wild Turkey and Pileated Woodpecker, as well as numerous Neotropical migrants and raptors. This area provides amazing panoramic views of rural New Jersey, and is also home to Black Bears, Bobcats, and Porcupines as well as various reptiles and amphibians. Additionally, DanaRay Farm will have for sale farm-fresh eggs and its locally famous soaps, handcrafted on site from the milk of their Alpine dairy goats. (You can also purchase DanaRay Goat's Milk Soap at the Scherman-Hoffman Nature Store). For more information about the DanaRay Farm see <http://www.danarayfarm.com> The farm is located at 349 Mattison Reservoir Avenue, Branchville NJ 07826. Parking is limited (8 cars) so you must preregister with NJ Audubon by calling the Scherman-Hoffman Wildlife Sanctuary at 908.766.5787. Cost: Free.

Note: there are no public restrooms available at the farm.

Wattles Stewardship Center Spring 2012 Events at a Glance

Saturday, May 19 Half-Day Field Trip for Farmland and Ridgeline Wildlife